TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 20.

STATE OF WISCONSIN.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

BY THE GOVERNOR.

For the blessings of health, peace and prosperity accorded to the people of Wisconsin, the past year, and for the progress made in all that contributes to advance our material and moral welfare, it is fitting that we should reverently return thanks unto Almighty God.

Now, therefore, I, Jeremiah M. Rusk, Governor of the State of Wisconsin, conforming to the proclamation of the president of the United States, do appoint a day of Thanksgiving and prayer, and I recommend that on that day the people of Wisconsin abstain from labor, and, meeting in their places of worship, give thanks to the Supreme Ruler for his kindness and mercy, and that the poor be generously remembered.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 23rd, 1888,

Intentionally whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused this Great Seal of the State of Wisconsin to be hereunto set.

At Madison, this 19th day of November, 1888.

J. M. RUSK.

By the Governor: ELMER G. TIMM, Secretary of State.

THE MIGRATION OF VOTERS.

It is said by an eastern writer that only those who have watched the growth of the railway system from $7,300 miles in 1850 to 155,700 in 1888, have been prepared to see the marvelous increase which has just appeared in the votes of some new states and territories. He then goes on and gives the following facts and figures which are deeply interesting.

Careful estimates of population indicate that the increase west of the Mississippi river since 1880 has been about 4,700,000, of which about 1,200,000 have been in the states of Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas, mainly by immigration from the south, and 3,500,000 in the other Trans-Mississippi states and territories. A very large share of this new population has been drawn from the older states east of the Mississippi. The voting shows, also, that a large majority of the migrating voters from the older northern states have been republicans. In the new states and territories, whose chief industry is farming, the proportion of persons of the voting age is from 80 to 100 per cent, and in the other, and especially the mining states and territories, from 40 to 50 per cent, while in the older states it is from 10 to 25 per cent.

Accordingly, it may be inferred that at least 1,200,000 persons of voting age have passed from Northern States across the Mississippi within the eight years since the last census was taken. It appears probable, moreover, that nearly half a million of these have settled in Territories not yet admitted to Statehood, and the rest in the Trans-Mississippi States, Oregon, California, Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska and Minnesota have gained greatly in republican votes at the expense of older eastern states. The Territories yet excluded have also gained in the same way, and apparently the proportion of new republican voters in them is still larger.

This transfer of more than 100,000 majority from states east to states and territories west of the Mississippi must have greatly weakened the republican party in the older states, if that party had not gained from the democracy. Yet it is substantially as strong in the northern states east of the Mississippi as it was when Garfield was elected. It has maintained its strength, too, in spite of a diversion of many thousand republican votes to prohibition tickets. The democratic party has gained more of the new naturalized voters than the republican. But it is, nevertheless, relatively not stronger in the northern states east of the Mississippi than it was in 1880, for the majority of new American voters coming of age has been against it, and the majority of changes from one party to the other has been against it. Thus it is that, notwithstanding transfers to regions west of the Mississippi, and notwithstanding the diversion of prohibition votes, the republican party has substantially held its former strength in the older northern states.

A VOICE IN THE MINOR KEY.

Now that the election is over and there is some time that can be devoted to serious reflection, the better class of democratic papers are discussing the situation of affairs as it concerns the democracy party. The greater number of the independent class—thoroughly democratic but not hide-bound—do not see much reason for democratic hope in '92. They did not like the nomination of Cleveland for two reasons, first that he was not fit for the office; and second that he was not a strong candidate. Among the number of leading democratic organs of New York that sounded the alarm before the St. Louis convention assembled, was the Albany Times. It didn't want Cleveland re-nominated for the reasons stated, and now that he has carried the party down to defeat, the Times discusses the question in a minor key as follows:

We have often said that Mr. Cleveland, to do his own re-nomination, would have to win the support of the whole convention of notable democrats at St. Louis. There was not one man to whom an appeal to his honor would have been made. But the Times all over now. It is making a demand to accept the situation and to attempt for a moment the kind of situation that is presented. A complete republican rule, with both houses in accord with the president, and an early admission of three, and probably four, territories as proposed republican states, with two senators each, and a number of new members of congress: in all the very least, a republican addition to the senate, and to the house, and to the electoral college of twenty or more votes, with which to meet the solid south (already broken) and Connecticut and New Jersey in 1892. A magnificent prospect, which the St. Louis convention thrust upon the democracy of the country by causing they were afraid Mr. Cleveland would press his own ambition!

WILL VISIT HIS CHIEF.

Vice-President-Elect Morton Contemplates a Western Trip.

HE WILL CALL ON GENERAL HARRISON.

More About the Standing of the New House—Gossip About the Cabinet—Official Figures from Several States—Political News.

MORTON COMING WEST.

New York, Nov. 20.—Lori P. Morton, Vice-President-elect, has made up his mind to go to Indianapolis to visit General Harrison. He will start some time within two days, and will probably have the effect of delaying General Harrison's trip East.

THE NEXT HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Lycurgus Dalton, of Indiana, postmaster of the House, who has already been in charge of Democratic success than any of his colleagues, was asked what his figures show to be the political complexion of the next House. His reply was that the republicans, according to his figures, would have three majorities, and possibly four.

THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE.

The Clerk of the House, General Clark, however, still figures a Democratic majority. He does this by claiming the election of a Democrat in the Second North Carolina district, of two Democrats in California, five in Maryland and four in West Virginia.

CABINET GOSSIP.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The ardor of politicians of both parties in Cabinet-making continues unabated. The two Northwestern favorites, Senators Spooner and Allison, have used all caution, and are positively declining to allow their names to be used. Senator Spooner, however, desires to see Governor Rusk in the office of Secretary of the Interior, and Senator Allison will be satisfied if Hon. John S. Clark is well taken care of. It is understood that Mr. Clark does not care to get into the Cabinet, but would like to be Public Printer, which office he can undoubtedly secure for the asking. Congressmen Thomas and Payson still continue to be strong favorites.

THE CHIEF OF THE ARMY.

Mr. Dingley is being spoken of with growing frequency for Secretary of the Navy. The prophets still hold the State Department open to Senator Sherman, and it is pretty generally accepted among the most probable things that John W. Foster will be Postmaster General. If Sherman goes into the Cabinet it is said to be likely that Mr. McKinley would take his place in the Senate. It would lie between McKinley and Foster, with the chances in favor of the former.

IRISH-AMERICAN JOINTLY.

New York, Nov. 20.—The Irish-American protectionists celebrated at Cooper Union Monday night the republican victory, Patrick Ford presiding, and ex-Governor Alger of Michigan, Detroit Esq., Edward O'Meara Condon, Mayor of New York, and others taking part in the jubilation. Mr. J. G. Blaine telegraphed from Augusta.

THE GERMAN EMPRESS.

She is welcomed to English soil by Queen Victoria.

London, Nov. 20.—The royal yacht bearing the Empress Frederick and her daughters and the Prince of Wales has reached Port Victoria, and the Princess Louise and Beatrice left Windsor to greet the Empress on landing. They were joined at the Waterloo station in London by Count von Hatzfeldt, the German Ambassador, who will accompany them to Port Victoria and will afterward go with them to Windsor. There was only a small crowd at the station on the arrival of the Queen's train, and there was no cheering or uncovering of heads. The day was overcast. The Empress landed shortly after the arrival of the royal train at Port Victoria. When the greetings were over, the whole party boarded the train and proceeded to Windsor. The Queen and the Empress met in the yacht's saloon. The meeting was exceedingly pleasant.

A MONUMENT TO McCULLOUGH.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—A handsome and massive monument to the memory of John McCullough, the tragedian, has been erected in Mount Moriah cemetery. It stands on a platform of hill beyond the creek, and on the spot where the remains of Mr. McCullough, his wife and son lie buried. Wednesday, November 23, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, has been fixed as the time for unveiling and dedicating it. Addresses are to be made by Steele Mackaye, Harry Edwards and William F. Johnson.

MAID MARRIED.

New York, Nov. 20.—It is stated in up-town circles that Miss Mary Maud Harrison and Mr. James D. Carson were finally married in this city Sunday. Miss Harrison is a well-known and popular actress of the Madison Square Company, and Mr. Carson is the Chicago capitalist who went into theatrical ventures this season. It is doubtful whether the bride will continue on the stage.

MAY READ THE BIBLE IN SCHOOL.

JANESVILLE, Wis., Nov. 20.—In the Edgerton Bible case Judge Bennett has decided in favor of the Bible in the public schools without a dissent from any of the judges. The suit was brought by Eugene G. Catholics to prevent such reading on the ground that it was opposed to their conscientious religious belief.

HEAVY FAILURE.

St. Louis, Nov. 20.—James P. Farley, prominent member of the Abolition party, has failed in his attempt to raise $100,000 for the benefit of his creditors. Liabilities, $250,000; assets, $10,000.
